album Transmission

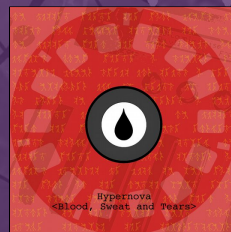

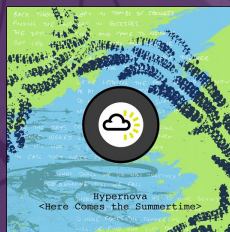

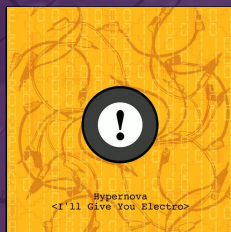

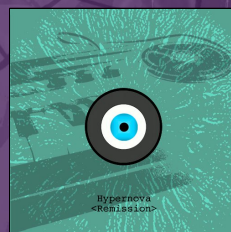

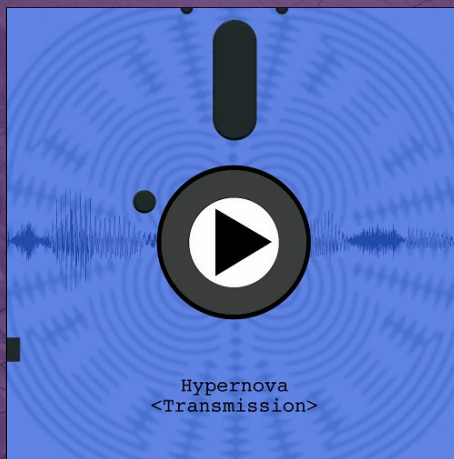

Just over two years ago, we released an album called <Transmission>. Since then, we've messed around a lot with the tracks, adding little extra bits here and there, and tweaking the odd noise where we thought it might help.

<Intermission> is no exception. Here are four more tracks from the album, reworked, revised, and revisited. Almost has been stretched a little, and made a lot more drummy. I'll Give You Electro has taken a trip into the past as a tribute to our favourite acts of the 1980s. Golden Wheel has just seen a bit of a reworking for no particular reason, and Here Comes the Summertime is the latest track to see treatment at the hands of Sappy, making it into a seven minute epic. As an extra special bonus for this EP, around the half way mark you'll also find a new track called Splinters.

However, we've kind of run out of things to release now, so we're going to take a little holiday.
